

An Excellent Resource On-line: kaDON.com

Article by: Soo-Im Jansson, 2016-02-22

The web resource kaDON is really an excellent source for learning taiko with expert instruction available on-line.

Kate Walker, who is researching taiko drumming in the UK, presented some initial findings at the European Taiko Conference (ETC).

This is what Kate Walker said:

"There is the big problem that people find about accessing instructors. That was a really big theme that came out [in the survey]. People want to connect with each other so that we can find access to instructors so that we can get better as players. So that was really a strong point. This very strong desire to learn from each other. [...] What I end up in seeing was a wonderful quote that came back from somebody [...], he said to me: 'If I were a heavy metal musician, it's the equivalent of having a lesson with Iron Maiden.' Going up and say, 'Hi, Iron Maiden, I live in [some place in the world] would you mind teaching me?' It's not going to happen and it doesn't happen. It really doesn't happen in other scenes that I am aware of. So we have Shoji, we have Shogo, we have world class musician, we have Franco [all taiko musicians]. They give us their time in every step of the way and that is a very unusual phenomenon as well."

With this in mind Taiko Shin Kai wish to help spreading the word about the on-line resource available on the Internet. it is called kaDON.

It is really an excellent source for learning taiko with expert instruction available on-line! They offer free lessons to try out their courses and the subscription fee cover all their courses. We definitely recommend this on-line resource!
